

RUBBER STAMP REPS

Undermining the Rights of People with Disabilities

Dozens of House members represent districts where the majority of the constituents voted against this administration's platform, yet these representatives are acting as rubber stamps for the White House's extreme agenda rather than working for the people they represent.

Issue Background

The below representatives voted for H.R. 620, a bill that would undermine the rights of people with disabilities and make it harder to sue for discrimination. The Americans with Disabilities Act (ADA) provides critical protections for people with disabilities, mandating equal access to public accommodations. This bill would hinder a person's right to file a lawsuit for violations of access to these public places, like restaurants and hotels. It would establish a waiting period for filing violations—violators would have 60 days to acknowledge written complaints and another 120 days to take action before the disabled person could file a suit. Currently, businesses have a legal obligation make themselves accessible, but this waiting period would weaken incentives for businesses to comply with ADA requirements.

Members of Congress should oppose this bill because it would introduce substantial barriers to public accommodations and increase discrimination. The ADA has provided critical civil rights protections for decades, and a vote for this bill turns back the clock on disability rights in America.
